MR. PHELPS PRESENTED

THE CZAR RESOLUTE AND DETERMINED IN HIS COURSE.

Russia Unwilling to Yield to Foreign Arbitration—The Envoy of Komaroff Conversation With Col. Zakrevsky, General Foreign News Notes.

EDWARD J. PHELPS.

WINDSOR CASTLE, May 20.—(Retiring United States Minister Lowell, accompanied by his successor, Mr. Phelps, arrived here from London by special train in compliance with a command from the queen, her majesty having appointed this as the date of the presentation of the new minister to the court. Mr. Lowell introduced Mr. Phelps to her majesty, and after going through a few formalities the new minister presented his credentials. Mr. Lowell has vacated the rooms occupied by the American legation in London, and everything is now in shape for the immediate installation of his successor.

The Czar.
St. Petersburg, May 20.—The czar is again under the influence of the stormy petrels of the old Muscovite party. He read carefully the debates in the English house of commons, and has expressed great astonishment at Lord Granville's construction of the concessions which M. de Giers is alleged to be ready to make. The czar is of a very impulsive nature, and when excited he calls his minister to account with terms military abruptness. An eye witness vouches for the accuracy of the following picture, which took place at the imperial residence at Gatchina.

The czar sent an aide-de-camp to summon M. de Giers in hot haste to his presence. When the minister arrived the czar opened the conversation by saying, "M. de Giers, you have been promising far too much."

M. de Giers, embarrassed, replied, "Sir, my statements have been exaggerated in London."

The czar rejoined: "My statements have been exaggerated in my own ministry for foreign affairs. The case is this: You have been hammering away at me for the last five weeks to obtain my consent to a sort of quiet arbitration on immaterial points in order to save to use your own words a point d'honneur for England. I told you that, as the very last resort, I was ready to agree to this merely."

After this M. de Giers offered his resignation, which, however, thanks to the mediation of the empress, was not accepted. M. de Giers' position is rather shaky, but it is still firmly believed here that war has been averted.

correspondent has just had an interview with Col. Zakrevsky, the bearer of Gen. Komaroff's despatches and trophies. The colonel is scarcely over thirty years of age. He is over six feet high. He has brown eyes, red hair and mustaches, believes in snuff-bits, wears very long spurs and is anxious for promotion.

"When will there be any more fighting on the Afghan front?"

"No for a long time. The Afghans have had about enough of it to last them for a long time."

"Do you think that there will be war between England and Afghanistan?"

"No, yet. As things now are, war between England and Afghanistan is much more likely. The Afghans say that they will do their best to destroy any English troops that enter their territory."

"Are the Afghans good fighters?"

"Pretty good at first, but they are terrible fellows to worry, raid and cut communications."

"How long did it take you to travel from Komaroff's headquarters at Dush Kegeri to St. Petersburg?"

"Twenty-two days, fifteen of which were spent on horseback."

"Are Gen. Komaroff's officers well supplied?"

"Very. Even at Dush Kegeri there is plenty of champagne and pate de fois gras. I saw you have concerts and private theatricals. Also, other the Transcaspian and Turkestan country is a very pleasant place. Many officers have their wives and families there. Society is charming. There is much female beauty among the native inhabitants."

The Negotiations.
LONDON, May 20.—The final installment of Lord Granville and M. de Giers' dispatches on the Afghan dispute will be issued during the Whitson recess of parliament. The conservatives will postpone parliamentary action until all the news has been presented. The publication of the first dispatches engenders the attention of the political world. The dispatches will show that the liberals is that Earl Granville's conduct with respect to the negotiations was weak and that he failed to perceive M. de Giers' intention until the news of the capture of English by the Russians was received. The liberal party, the Observer, says the dispatches chiefly show the cynical humor with which Russia pursued her aggressions. On parliament resuming, the Right Hon. Robert Balfour, in the house of commons, and Marquis of Salisbury, in the house of lords, will propose a vote of censure against the government. The intention is to make the debate the last party demonstration before the close of parliament.

The Russian invalid, of St. Petersburg, publishes the correspondence between Gen. Komaroff and Sir Sal. Selar, in Persian, and that between Col. Zakrevsky and Capt. Yate, in French, from March 20 to April 6; also a memorandum from Tairaf, the Russian agent at Kohan, dated April 8. The dispatches, which are all courteous in tone, treat mostly of events already known. The report states that after the arrival of the Russians at Dush Kegeri Capt. Yate requested the Persian Turkomans to accept military service, promising them pay and provisions. He stated that before the Russians arrived the Afghans had occupied Akab, and that although they failed to capture the bridge, the Afghans had not fortified positions on the left bank of the Kushk river. The Afghans force numbered 3,000 men.

The Race Commission.
PARIS, May 20.—Political interest here centres entirely on the proceedings of the race canal commission. The English delegates refuse to discuss the proposed international surveillance of the canal. A member of the sub-commission tells that the history of the meetings held, if written, would be that of a long, dull and tiresome process. Bismarck and Mr. Gladstone. Germany has shown herself far more hostile to England than the French republicans. The English delegates are convinced that even if an agreement is come to upon the point now at issue Prince Bismarck will raise fresh difficulties. Quite two months ago it was expected before the regularly constituted conference disposes of the whole question.

The Garnet Troubles.
HALIFAX, May 20.—The entry on duty of the Garnet has been sentenced to forty-two days close confinement for neglecting to prevent Paul Boyton from approaching the ship and placing a sham torpedo under the vessel in New York harbor, and for failing to allow the ship to be approached by the shipman on duty has been acquitted, but Lieutenant Garnier, who allowed Boyton to go ashore, has been sentenced to six months as a prisoner on board the Garnet, it is formally court-martialed. The general opinion among the blue jackets is that the entry having been so severely punished, the officer will get clear. The British iron clad Canada, has arrived here from New York.

The Delated Settlement.
ST. PETERSBURG, May 20.—Telegrams attribute the delay in making a settlement to the Russian demand for a representative to Cabal to the continued presence of English officers at Herat. The Russian papers contain time to time injudicious comments on alleged unwillingness to prepare which Russia is making for war. Olesia advocate state that work on the railway between Herat and Kandahar, and the Port of India is expected to arrive there soon.

Anxious England.
LONDON, May 20.—The Times says that although nothing has happened to justify any serious alarm, the anxiety of the British government is not without cause. Lord Salisbury's preliminary agreement with Russia in ratifying the preliminary agreement between Gen. Komaroff and Sir Sal. Selar, the situation cannot be regarded without anxiety by persons who are well acquainted with the bearings of the question.

Arrived at His Post.
LONDON, May 20.—Charles T. Russell, the newly appointed United States consul to Liverpool, has arrived at his post and at once entered upon the duties of his office. His predecessor, Mr. Pendergast, is believed to have been sent to the Reform League.

A $1,000,000 Fire.

Victor Hugo Dying.
PARIS, May 20.—Victor Hugo is rapidly sinking. His condition is considered very critical, and his physicians express the belief that his death is only a question of a few hours.

Famous Painter Dead.
PARIS, May 20.—M. de Neuville, the famous painter of military pictures, is dead.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 20.—A private letter from Westburg, in Washington county, Mississippi, dated May 16th, says: "The negro bandits have been arranged here. Squires Farris and Weems for the murder of Wm. Price, also five others, four men and the woman Jane Gray, as accessories. Butts pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The others were acquitted."

THE GIST OF THE NEWS.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE DISTRICT OFFICES PROBABLE.

A Bright and Breezy Hatch of Washington Waits Collected for Fernald—National News of General Importance to American Readers.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—It is possible that something will be done in the way of changes in the federal officials of this district this week, though nothing has yet been decided upon. The term of office of Frederick Douglass, the recorder of deeds, has expired, and there are a half dozen applicants for it. The office, it is supposed, pays from $6,000 to $8,000 per year. The duties are very light and are always done by dupliques. Mr. Douglas has held the office since Mr. Hayes resided in the White-house. He has found time on numerous occasions to go off on extended lecture and campaigning tours.

The office of United States marshal, held by Mr. MacMichael, of Philadelphia, is also much desired. Mr. MacMichael succeeded Marshal Henry, who was appointed by President Arthur for alleged sympathy with the Star Route defendants. Mr. MacMichael did not expect to hold on, but he has made up his mind that his tenure will be very brief and cannot last longer than the end of this month.

There is quite a race for the position of register of wills, but Mr. Ramsell, it is said, will be allowed to hold that office for some time. The position of the office is very small, while that of the office of recorder of deeds and marshal is considerable. The latter office has always been held by a personal friend of the president. Besides his other duties in connection with the courts the marshal always has officiated in all state and local elections. His introduction to the president.

Ten days ago it was discovered that the water from the Chesapeake & Ohio canal had passed a passage by walking cut a sluiceway into the Potomac river, a short distance above the dam at the great falls, where the drinking water supply of this city is secured. The statement was semi-officially denied notwithstanding the fact that every one, except the officials who should have discovered the leak, was in the place and corroborated it. Finally the health officer visited the place, and on his return confirmed the fact as originally stated. The question then arose as to who should repair the washout, the canal company or the authorities in charge of the water supply.

This question has been settled, and the residents of the city have since had the satisfaction of knowing that the water they drink is a mixture of dirty canal and not clear river water. It may be that the conflict of authority or absence of authority cannot be satisfactorily arranged. In that case the supply of canal water will be kept up. There are in all connected with the water supply and health department five or six different salaries. It is estimated for a half hour would be more than sufficient to make the repairs. The district commissioners evidently do not recognize the reports that the water would be epidemic in this country or that the affliction in Plymouth, Pa., was caused by polluted water.

Thursdays by those who have called at the White-house since the 4th of March are fled away regularly every day. Besides avoiding the cards, the news are entered in books for the day's work, and the hundreds of who visit the White-house daily to pay their respects do not leave cards, but all who call on the president on business are supposed to have their cards, and the president's door-keeper before they are admitted to the president's office. A similar careful record has been kept of the calls of those who have called on Miss Cleveland at her afternoon receptions. The attaches of the White-house, and the long experience are able to form a very good impression of the character and standing of callers from their cards. A cheaply gotten up card, they say, indicates a cheap man. The negligence of callers to provide themselves with cards of any description indicates that the caller has been accustomed to make visits where cards are necessary. Lord cards, or cards extravagantly gotten up, tell their volumes. When a caller has a carefully engraved card he is more likely to be more than if he was armed with a cheap printed card. People who call and present cards containing references to their business or occupations are treated accordingly.

A New Hampshire politician said: "The various candidates for the United States senatorship for New Hampshire, though they are carrying on an earnest contest, having but little said about it. It is the custom of the state to be conducted in that state for the past twenty years. Senator Blair leads them all so far, and he stands the best chance, provided the strength of the other candidates is not combined against him. Ex-Secretary Chandler is carrying on his efforts to succeed Mr. Blair for the next term, but he will probably go to New Hampshire next week. The legislature meets in three weeks at Concord, and as its principal business will be to select a senator they will begin work in that city as soon as they assemble. The Anti-Blair strength will, I am told, refuse to participate in the Republican caucus."

Miss Cleveland.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Washington Capital talks in its extra-editorial way of the current stories as to the reason why Miss Cleveland left the White-house: "She has been absent from Washington for a week or more, and her absence has been made an opportunity for the circulation of the story that she was going to leave her views in regard to the use of wine at the White-house were not adopted. Miss Cleveland has been away from her post for a short time, and it has been reported that she was quiet home of an intimate friend, where she could recuperate her strength and attend to her private matters without attracting attention. She had planned to return to Washington this week, but has decided to lengthen her stay, with her brother's approval, until next week. Between this brother and sister there is a perfect understanding of all matters pertaining to their personal and public affairs, and it is hardly less than an insult to both the president and Miss Cleveland to say that she has left the White-house as a result of her disagreement on the question of temperance or any other matter. It may be said for Miss Cleveland that she went to the White-house in obedience to a sense of duty, and she has shown since she has been the central social figure of the country that she honors the place she fills and is true to its traditions. Her prompt and loyal approval of her brother's wishes in every manner affecting his office as president is evidence of her great good sense and sincere interest in the strength of the social side of the administration. The radical temperance friends of Miss Cleveland may disapprove of her course in countenancing wine in the White-house, but she has a sense of the fitness of things which is as unerring as her judgment is strong."

Thanks for Good Advice.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Several days ago a delegation from the order of the Good Templars of the District of Columbia called on the president and left with him a written address urging him to make diligent inquiry into the personal habits and associations of the persons he should appoint to offices in the district, and to see that the strictest inquiry for the government of the district, especially those relating to the regulation of the sale of wine, and the suppression of intemperance or profligacy. The president has communicated his reply to Dr. Werrall, who was chairman of the delegation, and his reply has been reported to a mass meeting of the lodges of Good Templars of Washington. In reply to the address the president said:

"I read your address with great interest. It is something tangible, and if all men would come to me as you have, my labor would be greatly lessened. The good people are good people and friends of law and order. Before I left New York I determined to give the district a good government, but there are many counter-claims that I am sometimes at a loss to know what to do, but you come with clear statements of what I will take further notice."

The Wales Court-Martial.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—The examination of ex-Secretary Chandler, which was continued before the Wales court-martial, the fact was elicited that a new steel cruiser was paid for by instalments and without the witness' personal inspection. The defense will try to show that frauds were committed by the navy department of which Mr. Wales knew nothing, and the government interposed an unavailing objection.

The Vessel All Right.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—The secretary of navy has received a telegram from the commander of the United States steamer Omaha, at Provincetown, stating that the steamer, in there on account of a heavy fog, touched the ground when entering the harbor. Nothing is said in the dispatch, however, that the vessel being delayed on account of grounding.

THE THIRD FAULT.
Roach's Dolphin Warns Up Too Soon to Sustain the Government.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A crowd of a hundred or more gathered at the foot of Eighth street to see the Dolphin start on her third trip. In her first trip she had broken her keel, and she had been obliged to stop on account of an overheated engine. It was just 8 o'clock when the Dolphin swung out in the stream. As soon as the vessel was under way, Pilot Francis W. Bell headed her for Hell Gate. The trial proper was to begin off Kinnelon light, and those who have seen the members of the examining board got out pencils and began preparations for taking data. Suddenly the engines slowed down and the Dolphin came to a stop. Mr. Roach led the rush to the engine room to see what the trouble was. "The other crank pin is broken," was the report. The passengers landed. Mr. Roach did not appear crushed. "There isn't much to say," he said. "We had no other boat to say, that all. We one would reach the engine room a merchant vessel at top speed until all the bearings had been worn into condition by the action of the engine itself."

The result of the trip will be embodied in a report to the secretary of the navy. Whether another trial will be made is extremely doubtful. Mr. Roach will take the Dolphin to the yard below the Hell Gate, and the boat will be the wharf and started down the river Johnson, who, with several other men, found his pilot several times, emptying it, to signal the boat to land and take them on. While the boat was being towed to Richards approached Johnson, and an old quarrel was reopened. Richards called Johnson some hard names, and Johnson struck him. They clinched him, and Richards got on his pistol and fired twice in Johnson's face, one ball entering his upper lip and the other striking his forehead. Richards was arrested and is in jail. Johnson leaves a wife and several young children.

FATAL AFFRAY.
The Renewal of an Old Grudge Results in Murder.

OWENSBORO, KY., May 20.—Reah Johnson, a well known sportsman man of this city, was killed in a beer garden at Cammell, Ind., by Charlie Richards, a similar character of that city, who was on an excursion party on the steamer Two States to Cammell, and the tragedy occurred just as the boat was returning. The garden lies on the river below the Cammell, and as the boat left the wharf and started down the river Johnson, who, with several other men, found his pilot several times, emptying it, to signal the boat to land and take them on. While the boat was being towed to Richards approached Johnson, and an old quarrel was reopened. Richards called Johnson some hard names, and Johnson struck him. this marriage are Miss Lida P. Mathews,

Lewis P. Mathews. Before the war he was an old line Whig, and at the breaking out of the war his conservatism led him into the Democratic ranks. In common with many others of political belief, he was virtually ruined by it, and moved to this city in 1867, entering the house of Maddux Bros. & Co., Cincinnati, as a partner. He afterward connected himself with the house now conducted by Samuel Woodside & Co., at a high salary as traveling agent. He has held this position for many years, and no man was more widely known and esteemed. He several times declined a partnership in the firm. He was a thorough gentleman in every respect; scrupulous in the smallest matters, and working hard to pay off a heavy burden of security debts which he insisted upon meeting in full, principal and interest, no doubt weakened his naturally robust constitution, and led to his death at sixty-become at least a hale octogenarian. He was noted for his absorbing devotion to ing Men's Association, of Chicago, and Miss Florence Morrison, of Mayville,

Morrison, a sister of the bride, and two or three other friends. The ceremony was performed, and the whole affair passed off in the happiest manner possible, the newly-married couple leaving last night for their residence in Chicago, and the others returning to-day to Mayville.

Mr. Hutton's Level Head.
(Waterloo Tribune.)

We heard a gentleman relate a little incident which occurred in the office of Frank Hutton, when Postmaster General, a few days before the expiration of Mr. Arthur's term. A Virginia postmaster came in and stated his case. He proposed to resign and have Frank appoint a Democratic friend of his, who would run his office in his store, and let him run it. Frank said: "You are a Republican?" "Yes." "You opposed Cleveland?" "Yes." "Well, you have no right to an office under an administration whose election you opposed, and I would not be a party to the mean trick
by which you hope to get it. Stand up like a man and be kicked out with the rest of us."

SCHOOL NOTES.

THE EXPOSITION IDEA.

In view of the closing exercises of our public schools, and the "exposition" of the written work, we would like to have you publish the following extract from the National Normal Exposition, as illustrations of what the exposition is when the idea is carried out:

We published, in our last, Professor Galbraith's article from the Educational Courant on School Exposition. Many pleasant notices are coming to hand of successful efforts on the part of teachers and superintendents throughout the country, to give their schools and their communities the benefit of the new method. A late and very interesting one is from Oakland City, Ind., where Professor N. C. Johnson has realized fully this idea. The local paper is full of his remarkable work, showing that it is thoroughly appreciated by the community. The products of his exposition show that he has been able to train his pupils beyond mere acquisition, through reflection into habitual production and expression. The following extract from The Enterprise will give some notion of Professor Johnson's work:

"The Oakland Schools held their first annual exposition of written work last Thursday and Friday. All the desks in the high school room were covered with volumes of examination papers, outline work, copy-books, drawings, etc. On the walls were botanical and entomologi-cal specimens. On Friday, the examination of written work, alternated with literary exercises, philosophical experiments, music, etc., by pupils of the high school."

"One noticeable feature of the written work was that it was not a few selections by the best pupils, but every pupil of every grade was represented by work done throughout the year."

"Another was, that many visitors instead of curiously examining the work, took time to ascertain what really had been done. One gentleman from a neighboring town was heard to remark that he would like to send one of the outlines in U. S. History to the teachers of his place, as it was much more complete than the system in use there."

"We will only add that our exposition will not be so complete as we could wish as the work was not introduced at the beginning of the year, but here let us not expect too much."

Cure for Piles.
Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, hips and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness
of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, protruding from the rectum, and disagreeable itching after getting warm is a common attendant.
The application of Dr. Ross' Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, alleviating the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure.
Price 25 cents. Address the Dr. Ross' Medicine Co., Plaza, O. Sold by Geo. T. Wood.

POLITICAL REVOLT.

His Allies and Enemies in Government
Circles—The Rampant Rebel Leader
Becomes a Bone of Contention.
Tried for Treason-Felony.

MONTREAL, May 30.—The publishers of LeMotiv, a French paper, and others who have made no secret of their sympathy with Riel, have commenced the collection of a fund to provide eminent counsel for Riel's defense. Hon. H. Mercer, leader of the Liberal opposition in the Quebec legislative assembly, has been asked by a number of French Canadians to undertake the defense and will give an answer shortly. He says that if he decides to go to the Northwest he will make it a political trial and endeavor to show that the half-breeds have been treated with great injustice by the government. Now that the rebellion is practically over, the opposition in the house of commons will promptly move a vote of censure against the Macdonald government for their conduct in Northwest matters.

A strong pressure is being brought to bear to secure the dismissal of Col. Middleton, secretary of the territorial government, and Col. Irvine, chief of the mounted police. The leader of the Liberal party in the Quebec legislature said that Gen. Middleton must be a great enemy of Sir John Macdonald, for he has placed him in a pretty fix by capturing Riel. The best way would have been to put a bullet through him. Hon. John Chapleau, secretary of state, was Riel's counsel at the time of the 1870 rebellion, but would hardly dare to defend the arch rebel this time. The Prince of Wales Rifles, of Montreal, who are under orders for the Northwest, go into camp here to await further developments. Their active services may not be required.

Tried for Treason-Felony.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 30.—The government has not yet considered the case of Riel. The best lawyers here say that he will be tried for treason-felony, under the Treason-Felony act of 1880. He may be tried either by a general court-martial or by an ordinary civil tribunal. If by the former, the governor general will appoint the court and the sentence will require its confirmation. If he is tried before a civil tribunal his trial will be before a stipendiary magistrate and a justice of the peace with a jury of six. In this case the evidence will be reported to the governor general through the lieutenant governor. In either case the trial will take place in the Northwest, probably in Regina.

Bringing in the Dead.

BATTLEFORD, N. W., May 30.—A large party of scouts went through to Eagle Hills and brought in the body of Constable Elliott, who was shot at that place. The body was not mutilated and was found with the arms crossed on the breast, indicating the presence of half-breeds among the Indians. The fate of the captured teamsters is yet unknown, but no evidence of their having been killed has been discovered.

Poundmaker Reported Captured.

TORONTO, May 30.—Much excitement is caused here by the publication of a dispatch dated from St. Paul, stating that Col. Otter has captured Poundmaker. Inquiry was at once made at Winnipeg, and from the reply received it is believed the story is a hoax. Nothing is known there of the alleged battle. The latest advices from Battleford stated that everything was quiet. Col. Otter is awaiting the arrival of Gen. Middleton before making any movements.

MOST BLOODY AND HORRIBLE

Details of a Dastard's Death-Dealing Deeds
in Tyler, Texas.

TYLER, Tex., May 30.—The bloodiest tragedy in the history of Tyler has been enacted here, resulting in the death of both participants. Patrick Fendergrat, the aggressor, was a young Irishman employed at Corsicana, on the Texas Central railroad. He arrived at Tyler in search of a young woman named Lena Rogers, of whom he had become enamored while she lived at Corsicana. While searching the town he finally found her in a house of questionable repute. When he called to see her she refused to meet him. He declined to leave the house until granted an interview with Miss Rogers, and it seems that the occupants of the house finally retired, leaving Fendergrat in the parlor, where he spent the night.

Before the occupants were astir, Fendergrat arose and sought the room occupied by Miss Rogers. A moment afterward the most piteous and heartrending cries were heard emanating from the room.

When the servants entered they were horrified at finding Lena in the parlor, her night dress covered with blood and her throat cut, while above stood Fendergrat with a dagger. The servants ran for the proprietor, when they returned to the chamber they found Fendergrat stretched by the side of his victim, with a wound across his throat. He was clasping her body in his arms. The servants ran for a policeman, and when one arrived at the foot of the stairs he encountered Lena staggering down the stairway. She fell at the officer's feet and expired immediately. Behind her came Fendergrat, feeling his way along the banister, as he was blinded by blood. After a handkerchief was stuffed in his wound he articulated a few words, but gave no reason for the fearful deed. He was carried to jail, where he died in great agony.

A Fosse After Outlaws.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 30.—In an encounter in the Indian Territory between a posse and a band of thirteen cattle thieves, two of the leaders lost their lives and a third was captured. Bella Star, an ex-Confederate female spy, who was living with the outlaws was also taken prisoner. The thieves, who had stolen a herd of cattle, were overtaken by the posse near the Canadian river. A sharp battle with Winchester rifles ensued. The outlaws after firing many rounds fired off. The posse pursued and shot Arthur Moody and captured John Wagner and the woman. Middleton, the rider who was chased into the river and was forced from his horse by the current and drowned. The remainder of the gang made their way to the mountains and escaped. None of the posse were injured. Wagner is sure to be lynched.
